

Design choices

During the process I have made the following design choices:

- Color the countries on population magnitude with a scale where the color gets darker when the population gets bigger.
- The text is in the middle of the webpage because I found it otherwise to segmentated
- The barchart is simple, but the country name as title so it is easy to see from which country you see the data